

Bea Courtney

Bea has been involved in at least 15 annual Student Evaluation Case Competitions in Canada, either as lead organizer or team coach.

Based in St. John's, Newfoundland, Bea has extensive experience in evaluation, program and policy development, and policy research in both the public and private sectors. She has worked in varied policy areas, including social, labour market, health, and cultural sectors, as well as in the analysis of programming for Aboriginal people, women, immigrants and persons with disabilities. She has participated in projects at the national level and throughout the Atlantic provinces.

Bea has been active in both local and national organizations of the Canadian Evaluation Society (CES) and has received an Award for Service to the Society.

Source: CES and Goss Gilroy websites, August 2018