

Nancy Porteous

Nancy Porteous is a credentialed evaluator based in Canada. She is past President of the Canadian Evaluation Society (CES) and past Chair of the CES Educational Fund, which provides scholarships and other learning opportunities to help deepen knowledge in the field of program evaluation. On behalf of CES, Nancy served on the inaugural Executive Board of the International Organisation for Cooperation in Evaluation (IOCE).

Nancy has long supported evaluation capacity building initiatives, having served with Michael Obrecht for several years in the late 1990s on the organizing committee for the CES Student Evaluation Case Competition. She also coordinated the CES Student Paper Contest, which evolved into the SEEK Award - Student Excellence advancing Evaluation Knowledge.

Nancy was a faculty member for many years with the International Program for Development Evaluation Training (IPDET) hosted by the World Bank and Carleton University in Ottawa. She has also served as guest editor for the Canadian Journal of Program Evaluation. Nancy is honored to be a Fellow of the Canadian Evaluation Society and to have received the CES Contribution to Evaluation in Canada Award and the CES National Capital Chapter's Contribution to Evaluation Award. She is grateful to the many colleagues, clients, staff members, students and mentors who have taught her so much over the years.
